From The Editor

"Mini" might not be the correct word to use to describe the tournaments covered in this issue as these tournaments may draw small numbers or be only one day events but they serve a useful purpose in the Colorado chess scene.

There are times when playing a whole weekend might be too much or in the case of the monthly tournaments, one game a week suits a player just fine.

Often times, given the location, one day tournaments are all that is necessary as in the case of the ones that are held in Pueblo. Liz Wood and Jerry Maier are to be commended for what they are doing in Pueblo. Not a big town known for its great number of chess players but the opportunity is there for those who wish to play rated games just about every month and I salute Liz and Jerry for all their efforts!

So this issue is dedicated to all the organizers and Tournament Directors who give all Colorado chess players an option to play in a "mini" tournament setting. For those who are new to the chess scene, this just might lead them to want to play in the "bigger" tournaments, and that is good for everyone.

On a side but important note, the USCF is having an election to fill a couple of seats on the Executive Board. The candidates, in ballot order are, Gary Walters, Sam Sloan and Mike Nietman. You should have received your ballot with the June issue of Chess Life. Please take the time and read the candidate statements that are in the same issue and mail in your ballot with your choices (you are allowed to vote for two candidates) so that the USCF receives it by July 20th. All elections are important and this one is no exception.

May Caissa be with you.

Tom Nelson: Colorado Chess Volunteer Third Quarter 2010

as selected by CSCA President Lee Lahti

The Volunteer of the Quarter for the 3rd Quarter of 2010 is Tom Nelson for his leadership of the Colorado scholastic community.

In researching Tom's tournament director history, it was very interesting to see his background in Colorado scholastic chess. Although he has been assisting at scholastic chess tournaments in Colorado for a number of years, it was not until the early 2000's that Tom Nelson became a USCF tournament director. As a club director, the first tournament he helped run was an event for Boy Scout Troop 574 in April 2003. Back in those early years, Tom mentored as an untrained tournament director under some of our more experience TDs. Since 2004 at the Colorado Scholastic State Championships, Tom has had increasing responsibilities - listed as an Assistant TD, Section TD, and in recent years as Chief TD. Now Tom is a very active and sought after tournament director and scholastic organizer – including working as a member of the USCF Scholastic Committee for the last few years.

Since officially taking over the role of Colorado Scholastic Coordinator in 2006, Tom has really shown himself dedicated to our young chess players. Tom works tirelessly with school districts and private chess clubs around the state to expand the opportunities for our scholastic players. In the last several years, more scholastic players now play our great game and have more opportunities than ever to play. The Denver and Colorado Springs Scholastic Chess Series have evolved over the last several years and are some of our strongest scholastic events. Many smaller clubs – such as those in school districts on the western slope – are just beginning to show activity after Tom has helped someone to become the local organizer. Other school districts – including the Poudre School District in Fort Collins and the District 20 schools in Colorado Springs owe their thriving chess programs to Tom helping with the initial groundbreaking work.

Over the years, Tom's work in the scholastic chess community has usually been behind the scenes activity and has largely been unheralded, although Tom was able to really shine when he brought the National Elementary K-6 Scholastic Championships to Denver in May 2006, where 1971 players participated! Since that time, Tom has gone back into the background but has run many outstanding events for our scholastic players. Because of that, I want to say "Thank you" to him for everything he has done and for this, I honor him as a Colorado Chess Volunteer of the Third Quarter 2010.

*Please forgive any dates that are incorrect. Information regarding Tom's tournament director experience was taken from the USCF website. The CSCA President provides no guarantee the information is 100% accurate!

"The Chess Match" by Carl Probst

Selected Games From The Spring Is Sprung, Daffy Down Dilly, & Pueblo Open Tournaments

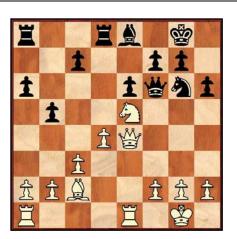

by Jerry Maier

Greetings again to all the chess players out there! The Pueblo legs of the Colorado Tour are now in full swing. Liz Wood, the tireless organizer of these events, decided that a schedule of every other month was just not enough chess. Therefore, in addition to the regular five rounds of Games 35 events, she has added a few four rounds of Game/45 tournaments. Tournaments are held at The Daily Grind coffeehouse, where about half the tables are reserved for chess on a Saturday. The games are dual rated, so they affect both a player's regular and quick ratings. The remaining 2010 Pueblo tournaments are held every month from July through October, with one in December to break up the holiday stress.

April's Spring Is Sprung tournament witnessed the return of Gary Frenzel and was a new experience for Jose Llacza, Gene Lucas and Ken MacRae. The usual suspects were there too. It was a comfortable turnout of 15 players. This is one of the traditional five rounds of Game/35 events. Forty percent of the players took home money: Julian Evans claimed the 1st place prize of $50; the U1800 prize of $42 was split by Anthea Carson and Ted Dovkos ($21 each); the U1700 and U1400 prizes were combined and split by Alexander Freeman and Jerry Maier ($36.50 each); and the U1100/Unrated prize of $21 went to first time participant Jose Llacza.

The May Daffy Down Dilly tournament was the second highest attended Pueblo event since I've been directing them. There were 22 players; the 2008 Winter Wonderland had 25 players. We would have had more but Robert Rountree couldn't find parking due to a car show all along Union street! About five city blocks were lined with classic and muscle cars in prime condition for the chess players to enjoy between rounds. The main streets had been closed and detours established: even I had trouble locating a spot and I had arrived early! This was one of the new four rounds of Game/45 events. Joining us for the first time were Betty Baffo, Amanda and Erik Csima, Sanat Mharolkar, Omar Al-Mutlaq and Roger Weitzel. This was Roger's first USCF event as well as Sanat's. Roger lives in Pueblo. Sanat was visiting relatives in Colorado Springs. He lives in India. This makes the second international player at a Pueblo event this year; Sain Gomez from Columbia played in February's Slow Road to Perfection. Fifty-five percent of the players took home money: the 1st place prize of $69 was split by Jeff Baffo, Jeff Csima and David Meliti ($23 each); the U1800 prize of $44 was split by Anthea Carson and Joe Golob ($22 each); the U1600 prize of $40 was split by Omar Al-Mutlag, Dean Brown, Jerry Maier and Isaac Martinez ($10 each); the U1200 prize was split by Ken MacRae and Kathy Schneider; and the U1000/Unrated prize of $20 went to Roger Weitzel.

The June Pueblo Open tournament was very well attended with 21 players. Yet again Pueblo had a great festival for folks to enjoy. Luckily it was only the street parallel to Union that was blocked this time; Pueblo has a lot of summer festivals along the Riverwalk and general downtown areas. Game/30 format returns with plenty of upsets and surprises. We had a few new folks joining us: Aaron Austie, Andrew Stephenson, Don Austin and Paul Sample. Kudos to Isaac Martinez with an excellent performance: gaining 189 points and leaping into Class C. Biggest upset goes to Betty Baffo for toppling Andrew Stephenson, overcoming a 691 rating point difference, in round 5. Our prize winners: 1st place prize of $60 and 2nd place prize of $50 was combined and split by Richard Buchanan and Julian Evans ($55 each); the U1900 and U1600 prizes of $50 and $46 were combined and split by Kurt Kondracki and Isaac Martinez ($48 each); and the U1400 and U1200 prizes of $38 and $34 were combined and split by Ken MacRae, Kathy Schneider and Betty Baffo ($24 each). Who knows what else the summer holds for those who make the journey down to Pueblo?

Games From Colorado Springs Chess Night

East Coast Deli Tournament May 2010

by Fred Eric Spell

For about a year now, the Colorado Springs Chess Club has sponsored a tournament at East Coast Deli in downtown Colorado Springs. It is a monthly tournament with a single game played every Wednesday evening in their spacious back room. For more information, check out the Upcoming Colorado Tournaments section at the end of this issue. I also email out a monthly wrap-up newsletter of this tournament and if you would like to receive a free copy, please email me at spellfe@hotmail.com.

Can You Figure Out How To Draw Out The King?

by NM Todd Bardwick

(Reprinted with permission of the author, the United States Chess Federation And Chess Life magazine.)

In the April 2010 edition of the Colorado Chess Informant, we looked at a couple examples of how a king was drawn out into the center of board, where he could be easily attacked. By drawing the king toward the center, you can force him into a tactic to win material or checkmate him.

Now it is your turn! Can you figure out how to draw out the king in these positions?

2010 National High School Chess Championships

by DuWayne Langseth

Columbus, Ohio was a new and interesting place for us to visit for the National High School Chess Championship. It's always exciting to travel across the country to compete in a championship tournament, and with trophies that stand chesthigh at stake, the adrenaline gets pumping. Over 1300 high school and younger players made the trip to test their talent against some of the best in the nation.

Colorado was represented by ten competitors: Alexander Hemmat, Kaylor Scudder, Phillip Scudder, Payton Rose, Rhett Langseth, David Spinozzi, Ryan Boyd, Danny Kim, Stephen Snyder and Samuel Honeycutt. Alexander, a 3rd grader, bravely battled opponents twice his age (and size), and did well against them!

By far, the outstanding accomplishment of the Colorado crew was the 2nd place finish of Phillip and Kaylor Scudder in the National High School Bughouse Championship, with nine wins and one loss. Being identical twins is likely a big plus to combine with strong chess skills in this two-person team game. They are well known nationally as top contenders in bughouse. Kaylor was also the highest finisher for Colorado in the main event Championship section.

Spectators were allowed to watch games from a close distance and it was fascinating to observe such powerful young players, who may eventually rise to become superstars of chess. Besides seeing my own son play and do well, my personal highlight was running the demo board for the championship game in the last round. It was a thrill being the only one with an over-the-shoulder view of the two strong masters dueling in the final Board One game. The player, Kristopher Meekins, who lost that game, still managed to clinch the National Champion first place trophy, having won his previous six.

Attack Of The King

This victory by Rhett kept him tied for 1st after two rounds in the Championship section. It's a rare example of using the king as an attacking piece when the queens are still on the board. I did my share of squirming, watching the end of this one from a distance as the clocks ran down.

> 2010 National High School Championship, Round 2 April 16, 2010

Rhett Langseth (1616) (CO) Adam Bissonette (1987) (MN)

1.d3 d5 2.Nf3 g6 3.c3 Rhett's favorite opening. In preparing for the event, Lee Simmons and I offered him advice to make changes to it, but he stayed with what was comfortable to him and it did work well. Coincidentally, Colorado Life Master Brian Wall has often played this lately.

3...Bg7 4.g3 c5 5.Bg2 Nc6 6.Qb3 Nf6 7.Bf4 O-O 8.Ne5 e6 9.Nxc6 bxc6 10.Bf3 Qe7 11.Be5 Nd7 12.Bc7 White wants to keep the black rook out of b8, but just exchanging on g7 is probably stronger.

12...Ne5 13.Bxe5 Bxe5 14.h4

I would have felt uneasy leaving the knight undeveloped, but the influence of Brian Wall has made Rhett think attack.

14...a5 15.Qa4 Bd7 16.h5 Rfb8 17.Qc2 Qf6 18.Nd2 Ra7 Black prepares to aim his forces down the b-file.

19.Rb1 a4 20.a3 Rab7 21.h6 White trades the chance to open his rook on the h-file for a menacing pawn on the sixth, that later proves decisive.

21...Kf8 22.Bg2 Rb6 23.f4 Bc7 24.e4 White's king begins to look vulnerable. Nf3 was best instead.

24...Qd8? Black misses a chance to improve with 24...e5! His queen is taking a long trip over to the b-file.25.Nf3 Qc8 26.Rh2 Qb7 27.Bh3

27...Rb3! 28.Nd2? White hopes for a seventh rank attack after exchanging rooks on b2, Qxa4, and Qa7, but he really needs to try to hold b2 instead.

28...Rxb2 29.Rxb2 Qxb2 30.Qxa4 Qxc3 31.Qa7?

A good offense may be the best defense, but now Black has a mating net if he can execute it correctly.

31...Rb1+ 32.Ke2 Rb2 33.Qxc7

33...Rxd2+? Missing mate in three after Qxd2+. Now White has a glimmer of hope. Black's king has some issues of his own. The clock was a likely factor at this point.

34.Kf3 Rxd3+ 35.Kg4 Rxg3+ 36.Kh4 Ke7 37.e5 Qb3 Black worries about a possible perpetual check, but he could have avoided it with 37...Qf3 38.Qd6+ Kd8 39.Qb8+ Bc8 40.Qd6+ Ke8 41.Qxc6+ Bd7 42.Qa8+ Ke7.

38.Qd6+ Ke8 39.Qxc5 Rc3 Frustrated, Black works to get to move 40, when he'll get more time needed to finish this.

40.Qd6 Qb1? Missing White's powerful response.

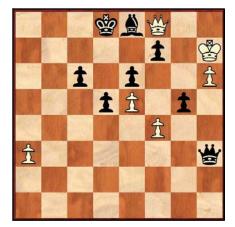

41.Kg5!! White has visions of winning now!

41...Rxh3 42.Kf6 The White king has gone from doomed to destroyer!

42...Kd8! The only move that has any chance to draw for Black. (42...Qf5+ 43.Kg7 Bc8 44.Qxc6+ Kd8 45.Rb2 wins for White.)

43.Rxh3 Qf5+ 44.Kg7 Qxh3 45.Kxh7 White's king has ironically hidden behind his opponent's fortress, and now prepares for coronation of the h-pawn.

45...g5 46.Qf8+ Be8

47.fxg5! Getting rid of the g-pawn that is Black's only hope. Other tries draw at best, like 47.Kg8 gxf4 48.h7 f3 49. h8Q Qxh8+ 50.Kxh8 f2 51.Qb4 f1Q 52.Qb8+.

47...Qf5+ 48.Kg8 Qxg5+ (Qxe5 isn't any better here.)

49.Qg7 Qe7 50.h7 Qxa3 51.h8Q and Black resigned several moves later.

Bird's Opening

1.f4 I love this spirit behind this opening move! It says to the world; "I am here to fight!" I have a decent amount of experience on both the Black and White side of a Bird's formation. My typical opening choice, 1.Nc3 will sometimes transpose to it. Since the dreaded From's Gambit (1...e5?! 2.fxe5 d6 3.exd6 Bxd6 4.Nf3 g5) has long since been defanged (any would-be Bird's player need only invest about 10 minutes study and they would be well prepared to avoid it's pitfalls...) Henry Bird's patent seems to have recruited a whole new cadre of followers even down amongst us hackers.

1...d5 2.Nf3 g6 3.e3 Bg7 4.d4 White has set up a stone wall pawn formation, unusual so early in the game. More common is for White to fight for the thematic e4 advance with the preparatory 4.d3

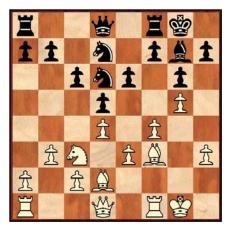

4...Nf6 5.Nc3?! Might not be good to allow Black to solve the queen's bishop problem so easily. Pete seemingly came to agree with that assessment, as here he prevented that option with h3 in a similar game we two have in progress now.

5...Bg4 6.Be2 O-O 7.O-O Nbd7 8.h3 Bxf3 9.Bxf3 c6 White's opening can not be called a success, at least not using the harsh standards of a Professional Tournament player; Black has easy development, a full share of the center and no weaknesses, but for us mortals the position retains a lively selection of dynamic options for both players.

10.g4 e6 11.g5 White's aggressive king side expansion is visually appealing but has it's down side as well. Black actually feeds off of these thrusts to perform a useful regrouping of his pieces, strengthening his hand in the center.

11...Ne8 12.Bd2 Nd6 13.b3 To keep the knight out.

13...c5! White has done good work with his king side progression, but it still needs a move or two before it reaches critical mass. Contrast that with Black's position; fully developed and with active operations (vs. White's rickety center) already begun.

14.dxc5 Nxc5 15.Rb1 Rc8 16.h4 b5! The beautifully repositioned knight on d6 helps coordinate the entire Black position.

17.Ne2 Nce4 18.Bb4 White's initiative reached it's high water mark on move 16. But like Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, beautiful and brave as it was, it failed to do enough damage to the enemy's forces. The results are the same. White must now think of his own survival and is forced to react defensively.

18...a5 19.Bxe4 Nxe4??! Come on, you've got to be kidding me! No, sadly I am not. And here is where we get the title of this article and hopefully a dramatic lesson our reader will take to heart! It doesn't matter how well you've played! Unless your opponent has resigned and you are marking the win on the pairing chart it's not too late to ruin all your hard work! I need only play the routine 19... axb4 and Black has the pleasant dilemma of just how to grind White to dust. But NOOOOO!!! Fat boy (me) has to do things the hard way.

20.Bxf8! Duh!

20...Qxf8 21.Qd3 I came really close to resigning here. Fortunately, my nurse came in and changed my diaper. No, I mean after I had my bottle and a nap I was able to calm down and take stock. Just as it pays to have a short memory as an NFL quarterback (People will easily forgive your interceptions IF you then go on to throw the winning touchdown pass!) it is the same in Chess after making a blunder. Once I was able to master my emotions I realized that Black was not lost. Heck, not only is he not lost, he doesn't even stand badly. The more I looked and evaluated, the more I liked my set up! A list; A nigh-on unchallengeable knight on a superb outpost square, a death lock on the dark squares, full control of the center, mastery of the half-open c-file, the safer king and a mobile pawn roller on the queen side. Of course Black needs to hang on to a little sobriety, the clear rook for minor piece transaction I just negotiated is not referred to as "Losing the Exchange" for nothing!

21...Qa3 22.Rfd1 Qxa2 23.Qxb5 Rxc2 24.Qb8+ Bf8 25.Ra1 Qb2 Here I was positively starry-eyed at the prospect of escaping my stupidity with a shared point. Of course I would have jumped at the draw had it been offered (or he repeated moves), but why would White settle for a measly draw? He's winning, right?

26.Rdb1 Here my heart sank as I realized my frolicking amongst his queen side pawns was over and White is decidedly not pursuing a peace treaty! I looked for a long time at the humiliating retreat 26... Qg7 and decided that was a long, slow road straight to the ninth plane of Hades. After 27.Nd4 the fun is over. Recess bell has rung, teacher is back in the room and passing out a pop quiz. In short, like a Sinead O'Conner CD, an ordeal simply too hideous to endure. Here is opportunity numero dos to embrace my bone headedness. I decide to sacrifice another exchange, and at least scare him a little before I really resign for real this time. Had I foreseen all this I could be legitimately proclaiming this my personal "Evergreen" game. As it is, it becomes a no less memorable and in it's own right a very valuable parable of perseverance.

26...Rc1+!!! Yes sir! A triple punctuation and I mean every one of them!

27.Rxc1 Qxe2 0-1! A shocking decision to the casual observer, but analysis bears it out. The only way to continue for White is 28.Rf1 (otherwise Black's queen and knight mate White with all the speed and finality of a guillotine). Then after some deft checking Black will pocket White's e, f, and h pawns. The "Judo-Chop!" of death then follows with Black's knight forcing White to return one of his exchanges. The smoke will clear to reveal this score; White, a rook. Black, a bishop, four (!) pawns, and all the positional trumps. Pete had seen enough. Here is a likely continuation; 28.Rf1 Qxe3+ 29.Kg2 Qg3+ 30.Kh1 Qxh4+ 31.Kg2 Qg3+. Thanks to the support of her faithful knight, Black's queen can deliver an unstoppable barrage of checks, very much like the famed "windmill" combination. 32.Kh1 Nxg5 33.Ra2 (what else?) Nf3 34.Rxf3 Oxf3+ and see list above. Wow. I almost wimped out and missed this! Don't hate your blunders! Hug them, love them, and most of all believe in them. You never know what Swan your ugly duckling may grow into.

Hellraiser Gambit Strikes Again!

by Jeffrey Baffo

With a nod to Brian Wall and his devotion (obsession?) with the Fishing Pole, here is another example of a little Gambit I invented (discovered?..stole?).

1.Nc3 c5 2.e4 g6 3.h4?! At this point several things should be clear; first, whoever is playing White is off his or her meds, second, Black can forget about any sort of help from his theory sources (be it print, data bases, or even e-sources...) and finally, White is not going to accept a boring game!

3...Nf6 4.h5 Of course 4.e5 insures a calm, stable and risk-free advantage for White but that's not what this is about! The Hellraiser is about attacking your opponent with all the subtlety of a Pit Bull on crack.

4...Nxh5 Most competent players conducting the Black army, will at least have a fleeting suspicion that their opponent might have the following exchange sacrifice in mind and it should be looked at. However...just as with the Spanish Inquisition, NOBODY EXPECTS IT!!

5.Rxh5!!! "Cardinal Biggles...POKE her with the SOFT CUSHIONS!!!

5...gxh5 6.Qxh5 b6?! Natural looking, but already (in one sense) a losing move. Defending against a mating attack on move 6 is a little like your boss giving you a huge new project before your 1st cup of coffee; you're just not ready for it! White is fully equal here and Black has yet to fully weather the storm. Now Black has f7, c7 and two exposed rooks to worry about. In such a situation a quick end could be expected but what follows is like sticking your head in a bucket of ice water!

7.Nf3 h6?! Maybe 7...Rg8 would have been better?

8.Qe5 Rh7 9.Nb5! With two threats, 10...Nc7+ and...

Na6?? 10.Nd6# 1-0

My opponent was total class after this loss and allowed as how he'd never had such an experience in his long chess career. I have played this devious little scheme in seven serious games with only one loss (no fault of the opening, I spoiled a fine position with a total bone head blunder) so I can bear witness to it's effectiveness. So what's the verdict on this little sweetheart? Probably not something to play vs. Topolov on your next trip to Linares, but for us wood pushers? Oh yeah, go ahead, raise a little Hell!

Shipp's Log

by Archie Shipp

I finally got back into some OTB tournaments this spring, since my learning curve for my job finally started flattening a bit. Now if only I could get my chess learning curve to do something other than flat-line, I'd be really happy.

The first game comes from the 2010 Colorado Class Championships. I was On Course over the weekend, getting 3 wins in the 4 games. My only loss was to Michael Dempsey, which was probably poetic justice since I stole one from him last year in this same event after being down a queen for about 50 moves. This game with Artem Bolshakov was in the fourth round and secured a tie for second in the class.

The second game is from the Boulder Quads. I was Off Course in this event, and this was one of the two losses I had. However, I felt it was a more instructive game than my lone win that day and was against a higher rated opponent, Jose Llacca.

2010 Colorado Class Championship April 25, 2010

Artem Bolshakov Archie Shipp

1.d4 f5 Artem and I had played once before, so I knew he would open with d4. Like most kids, though, I was sure he hadn't played against many Dutch defenses.

2.c4 Nf6 3.f3 e6 4.Bg5 h6 5.Bh4 g5 6.Bg3 f4 I wasn't sure I wanted to push this pawn, since he could reply with e3 and then open the position a bit.

7.Bf2 b6 8.Nc3 Bb7 9.e4 fxe3 10.Bxe3 d5 11.cxd5 Nxd5 12.Nxd5 Qxd5 Now I've got a pretty good lock on the center.

13.Qc2 Bb4+ 14.Bd2 Bxd2+ 15.Qxd2 Nc6 16.Bd3 0-0-0 Finally I'm castled, fully developed, and exerting a ton of pressure on d4.

17.Ne2 Nxd4 18.Be4?? Crafty suggests: [18.Nxd4 Qxd4 19.O-O-O Qa4 20.Kb1 Bd5 21.b3 Qf4 22.h4 Qxd2 23.Rxd2 (score -0.98 at depth 10)].

18...Nxf3+ I watched the air go out of Artem when I played this. No matter how he responds, his queen is done.

19.Kf2 Qxd2 20.Bxb7+ Kxb7 21.gxf3 Rhf8 22.Rhg1?? Qxb2?? I'm intending Rd2 next, but Crafty likes Rxf3+ 23.Kxf3 Rf8+ 24.Kg2 Qxe2+ 25.Kh1 Rf2 26.Rg2 Rxg2 27.b4 Rxh2+ 28.Kg1 Qf2# instead. Artem was able to see that piece annihilation and eventually mate was coming anyway and resigned. 0–1

1.c4 I've been playing an English lately, but I haven't faced one in a long time.

1...c5 2.e3 Nc6 3.Nf3 g6 4.d4 Bg7 I probably should have taken the pawn in order to keep the center from getting blocked.

5.d5 Ne5 6.Nc3 Nxf3+ 7.Qxf3 d6 8.Bd2 Nf6 9.h3 Qb6 I played this to keep his king in the center a little longer.

Where Is The Expert Title When You Need One?

by Paul Anderson

Recently, I was writing a newsletter about Dean Brown and his prolific tournament activity when I noticed a new link on the Member Services Area of the USCF's ratings database. It was a link to the title history of Dean Brown. I was a little surprised to see that Dean had earned a title, seeing as the USCF has only given out titles for crossing over the master rating (National Master) and maintaining a master rating for 300 games (Life Master). However, the USCF has now added a performance-based title system for several more categories that is retroactive for all tournaments in its database since 1991:

Rating	Title
1200	4th Category
1400	3rd Category
1600	2nd Category
1800	1st Category
2000	Candidate Master
2200	Life Master
2400	Life Senior Master

I was happy to see this long-debated idea finally implemented. There were several times in the past when this information would have made writing my newsletter easier. Back in 2004, I was pouring over my database of chess results and decided to publish games from the only 3 experts I had beaten at that time. I wrote, "Well, I may not be an expert, but I have, on occasion, broken off the shackles of this class world and soared off into the heavens to touch the face of expert status. At G/15, I have won 8 games against USCF-rated experts. At G/30, I have won 3 times, and at G/90, I have won 2 times. As impressive as my double-digit performance is on the surface, it turns out it was only against 3 different people. So, I figured it wouldn't take me very long to thank those experts for allowing me, at least for a brief moment, to feel like I could teach chess to a bunch of novices." Since that time, I have increased my total victories to 23 over 7 different people. However, these numbers are only an estimate as ratings are a fluid thing.

You see, my criteria for determining whether I counted a win was based on the opponent's USCF rating being at least 2000 at the time the game was played. So, when I beat Jason Caldwell (4/12/05)when his club rating was 2115, I couldn't count it, as his USCF rating was 1997. So, I missed adding another expert scalp to my trophy case by a lousy three points. This ratings dilemma is meaningless to most people, but to a stat-obsessed guy like myself, it is filled with such irony that I had to play it up when I wrote about my victory over NM Josh Bloomer. Again, my opponent had just fallen below a ratings cutoff when I get the victory. Josh was 2197, which would be significant to Josh if he hadn't already crossed over 2200 and received his certificate. Since it was another 3 point miss, I just had to crank up the Lynyrd Skynyrd song, "Gimme Three Steps" as I wrote the newsletter and tweak the lyrics a bit. "And I know you don't owe me, but I wish you would let me ask one favor from you; Say, won't cha gimme three points, gimme three points mister, gimme three points or some more. Gimme three points, gimme three points mister, and you'll never see me no more!"

> Josh Smith March 29, 2006 10:06 AM

"If you don't count beating NM Josh Bloomer as 'beating a master level chess player', you are sorely mistaken. A win against those gods of chess is to be cherished and fondly remembered regardless of whether their rating is 2197 or 3 points higher. I beat NM Jeff Phillips (2196) and then drew GM Igor Ivanov (2529) in the last game he ever played. I consider that a win against a master and a draw against someone that has a winning record against the World Champions that he has faced! Once a master, always a master...I think that it was put best in the movie 'The Luzhin Defense' when John Turturro's character walked into a hotel and was greeted by the entire staff. They all bowed graciously as the grandmaster passed by without notice. The concierge, trying desperately to gain his attention, whispered the most correct words possible 'Maestro, Maestro.' Those words still ring in my mind."

> Tim Brennan April 4, 2006 4:56 PM

"I think that the person's official rating has to be master strength to really say you beat a Master. There is no fuzzy logic here. The person is either a Master or not a Master at the time you beat him. But if you tell a chess player something like, I beat a 2197, it basically carries the same weight."

Chess players are great at qualifying and having excuses and explanations for everything. "Well it says his rating is 1651, but he REALLY plays like he is 1842. Damn Sandbagger. Probably because of all those kids in Arizona who are underrated and that dang blasted internet..."

or

"Well he was rated 1997 at the time I played him, in 2001, but I have been watching the MSA website for them to do a re-rating from 5 years ago to see if he was REALLY a 2004 rated player, which according to my calculations he was. The events were rated out of order at the time, so the whole system in messed up. In that case I beat an expert! I am gonna stay up until 3AM when they update the databases! Sweet!"

I enjoyed the responses I received from that newsletter, and I am going to say they are both right. How can I come down on both sides of this issue? Well, it is not easy riding the fence, but here goes. I like Josh Smith's comments about "once a master, always a master" because master is more than just a ranking, it is an official title given out by the USCF. On the other hand, I like Tim's comments because a player's rating is an estimate of their playing strength. There is more satisfaction to beating a master in his prime than when his rating has dropped well below the master rank. Of course, none of this helped when I published a game against Alexander Gitis. There was no title for expert, and while Alexander has usually been in the expert ratings, the one time he was not was when I got a win.

RMPCC Thursday Night G/75 Swiss July 1 - 29, 2010

5 Round Swiss System Tournament.

Time Control: G/75

Site: Right Move Public Chess Club of Colorado Springs meeting at First United Methodist Church 420 North Nevada Avenue, Classroom #234 (South Wing) Colorado Springs, CO 80903.

Directions: Nevada Avenue between Boulder and St Vrain in downtown Colorado Springs.

One Open Section: USCF-membership required.

Entry fee: $10.00

Prizes: Total cash payout is 75% of gross receipts. 1st=40%, 2nd=20%, 1st U/1500=15%. Prizes awarded the last Thursday of the month.

Registration: 6:00 to 6:55pm, Rounds: 7/1, 7/8, 7/15, 7/22, 7/29 7:00 PM..

Phone: (719) 484-9467

E-mail: rightmovechess@yahoo.com

Play one game each Thursday night for the entirety of the month.

Half point byes are available for any two rounds.

Side events include informal "friendly" games of chess and an informal "club" rated G/75 tourney for non-USCF players, also to last the entirety of the month.

For more information visit www.rightmovechess.com. If running late to a round call the club cell phone @ (719) 484-9457. Roll call will take place at 6:55pm to confirm that everyone registered for the event is in the room and ready to play. Registered players not present during roll call will not be paired for that evenings round.

RMPCC 2010 Summer Quads A Saturday Summer Chess Series #1 July 3, 2010

3 Round - Round Robin System Tournament. Time Control: G/55 - TD/5 Site: First United Methodist Church, 420 North Nevada Avenue, Classroom #234, Colorado Springs, CO 80903. Directions: The church is on Nevada Avenue between Boulder and St Vrain in downtown Colorado Springs.

Entry fee: $10 if received 3 days prior to event, $15 on event day.

Prizes: $35 to first in each quad.

Registration: 10-10:30 a.m., Rounds: 10:45-1:00-3:00 p.m.. Entries: Right Move Public Chess Club P.O. Box 246, Colorado Springs, CO 80901

Phone: 719-484-9467

E-mail: rightmovechess@yahoo.com

If the total number of entries is not divisible by four, the lowest 5 - 7 players will play a 3-round swiss. Because this tournament is in a "Quads" format, byes are not allowed and withdrawals are strongly discouraged.

Unrated players will be placed in the lower quad or section and will be eligible for prizes.

Checks payable to Right Move Public Chess Club.
