From The Editor

Happy New Year everyone! I hope that 2011 was kind to you and that 2012 will be even better!

With the new year also comes the first online edition of the Colorado Chess Informant. In this day and age of ever changing technology it was only a matter of time before this happened. I for one am excited for the possibilities of what can be done with this magazine - full color pictures, expanded coverage and best of all it saves the CSCA a considerable amount of money.
So don't be afraid of sending in articles with full color pictures and the like, because we can now accommodate just about anything you would like to see published.
The highlight of this issue is the time control of G/90+30 second increment. It would appear that chess players, not only in this state, but everywhere, really enjoy this time control. So much so that I have decided to change the time control of the Monument Open to it. One of the benefits of this time control is that every move must be recorded. No more of this, "under 5 minutes and we all stop writing down moves".

Again, welcome to this new format, I hope you like it. And whether you are reading this issue on your laptop, ipad or Kindle, welcome to this brave new world.

May Caissa be with you.
Fred Eric Spell

President's Report

by Paul Covington

Ihope you are starting the best year of your life! Now that sure sounds optimistic. I am optimistic about life and Colorado Chess. I have news to share. Your president and the board have been working hard to get the State's tournaments scheduled. The following are scheduled:

March 31-April 1, 2012 Colorado Class Championships in Manitou Springs City Hall.
April 20, 21 & 22, 20122012 Colorado Closed, Manitou Springs Masonic Lodge
April 20, 21 & 22, 20122012 Scholastic Closed, Manitou Springs Masonic Lodge

April 21 & 22, 20122012 Colorado Senior Championship, Manitou Springs Masonic Lodge.
June/July TBA Rocky Mountain Team Chess Challenge 2012, Manitou Springs Masonic Lodge.
September 1 & 2, 2012 63rd Colorado Open (new location - Sheraton Denver Tech Center--details will follow) www.sheratondenvertech.com (exit at East Arapahoe Road, go East, turn right (South) first street (South Clinton Street), $1 / 4$ mile to hotel).
The Colorado Class Championships will be a stand-a-lone event and will have Master/Expert, A, B, C, D, E, and Unrated (based on need) sections this year. The class sections (A-E) winners will be invited to represent Colorado in the Rocky Mountain Team Chess Challenge. More details on our website.

The Colorado Closed and Scholastic Closed: The February Supplement will be used for rating. We are building a list so keep an eye on the President's Plate on the website for more details.
The Colorado Senior Championship is a new tournament. It is planned for April 21 and 22. Since this is the first one (to my knowledge) I want to set the age requirement to those aged 50 or older (if you will be 50 before December 31, 2012 you will be able to play in this tournament even if you don't have a beard grin!). This will be four rounds G90 /+30 and will run concurrently with the Colorado Closed, more details in tournament announcement later.

The 63rd Colorado Open has a new home. The Sheraton Denver Tech Center. They bid a lower cost and offered reduced rate hotel rooms for our members. More details later.

I have been working on a website redesign. My thanks to those who have shared ideas. Rick Nelson has been open to our ideas and has been very supportive. I hope I don't wear him out with questions! I have reviewed every state affiliate website and expect our site to be the best! If you have ideas you want to share, contact me.
Here's to the best year ever for Colorado Chess!

Colorado Tour Committee Report

Itasked Joe Fromme to form a committee to investigate how to improve the Colorado Tour. The following suggestions are from the Colorado Tour Committee. Joe Fromme, VP, asked for input from: Ted Doykos, Dean Brown, Kathy Schneider, Ron Rossi, Larry Wutt, Julian Evans, Anthea Carson, and Zack Bekkedahl. Joe asked me to thank each of you for the time you spend putting together your ideas on improving the Tour. Background for this activity.
Present tour system started about 4 years ago. Before that only two or three day events were considered tour events.

Larry Wutt did some statistical analysis that is interesting. 13 out of 239 players played enough tour events to be competitive in the tour. Roughly 5 per cent of our membership.

Sometimes too many can be just as bad as too few. I am grateful that we are having so many tournaments in all flavors: Tour, non-tour, two day, one day, one night per week, major scholastic programs in Colorado Springs, Denver, and Ft Collins. I didn't realize how many there were until I tried to co-ordinate this years' CSCA events around the other tournaments.
I don't want to discourage any organizer. I appreciate our organizers! I am also very aware that actions have long-term consequences; therefore, I plan to go very slowly with this examination of the tour and any potential changes.

"I am grateful that we are having so many tournaments in all flavors."

I am challenging our board to take Joe's committee seriously and consider carefully this question: How can we get more of our membership involved in the tour?
The task I gave to Joe was to investigate the way we presently do the Tour and see whether or not improvements could be made.
The following suggestions were given to me and will be presented to the Board for discussion.

Reform the Tour into two sections: One where the games are G89 or shorter, the other G90 or longer. (Due to time constraints, in G90 and up, the first round may be shorter - as G60 /+30s or equivalent).
Encourage using the FIDE/USCF time standard of G90 with 30 seconds added to clock per move.
Encourage selecting sites with good lighting, good tables, reasonably quiet, and conducted every tournament professionally.
If the two tour concept is adapted, give each section its own name for identification and marketing (this could be done via a naming contest).
This is an open letter to all our members so everyone is knowledgeable about this effort to improve the Tour.

2011 Tri-Lakes Open

by Fred Eric Spell

During the first weekend of October in 2011, 40 players arrived at the beautiful Inn at Palmer Divide in Palmer Lake to participate in the second edition of the Tri-Lakes Open. An increase from 29 players the year before! This year like last year, the time control of G/90+30 second increment was utilized once again. This time control has now proved itself very popular. So much so that a number of Colorado tournaments will make the change to it for the coming year.
The winner of the Tri-Lakes Open for 2011 was Eric Montany with a perfect score of 5.0! Congratulations Eric and to all the players who played, thank you! I hope to see you and a few more chess players for the 2012 edition.

Games From The November 2011 Powers Panera Bread Tournament

by Fred Eric Spell

After two and a half years of Wednesday night chess at the East Coast Deli restaurant in downtown Colorado Springs we said goodbye to that fine location due to the fact that they changed their closing time to 6 pm . Don't fear, a new location has been secured for players. The Panera Bread restaurant at the intersection of Powers Boulevard and South Carefree Circle has graciously allowed the monthly tournament to continue on Wednesday nights. So please join your fellow players each and every Wednesday evening (excluding holidays) and let the chess games continue!

Pinned To A Square

by NM Todd Bardwick
(Reprinted with permission of the Author, the United States Chess Federation & Chess Life magazine.)

A pin is when a long-range piece's powers line up two of the opponent's pieces where the less valuable piece is first in the line of attack.

Did you know that a piece can be pinned to an empty square?
There is an old chess saying, "Amateurs play for pieces, masters play for squares."
The stronger you become at chess, the more you will understand that empty squares can be the key to winning the game.
You may have seen this position before from the most famous chess game in history that took place in Paris in 1858 between Paul Morphy (White) and the Duke of Brunswick and Count Isouard (Black).

Duke of Brunswick & Count Isouard

Paul Morphy
The first thing you may notice about this position is that the Black king in still in the center of the board. White is behind in material, but has a nice attacking chances against the Black king. Do you see the square that a piece is pinned to? Look at d8. If Black's knight were to move, Rd8 is checkmate!

So the logical question is, "Can I force the knight to move?" Yes! Morphy plays the brilliant, 16.Qb8+! sacrificing his queen. Black must respond, 16...Nxb8 and White played 17.Rd8 mate.

Here is a position from two of history's greatest chess players that took place in Kemeri in 1937.

Alexander Alekhine
Reshevsky is up a pawn in material, but this game may not make it out the middle game where he can try to cash in on this advantage. Notice that the players are castled on opposite sides and both kings are in potential danger.

Also note that Black's rooks and queen are on active squares (White must guard g2 against mate) and his knight is pinned to his king.

But there is also a possible pin to a square that White may be able to take advantage of.

Can you find it?
Look at the rook on f1. It would love to move to f8, but the f6 pawn is in the way. How can White take advantage of this?
First, White sacrifices the exchange with 35.Rxb8+ Kxb8 If Black plays 35 ...Kd7 (note that White is ahead a knight here), White can play 36.Rxb7+ Kc8 (36...Ke8 37.Qxe5+ fxe5 38.Rf8 mate; 36...Ke6 37.Re7+ Kd5 38.Rd7+ wins the rook on d2; 36...Kd8 37.Re7 Rxe7 [37...Rde2 38.b7] 38.Qb8+ Kd7 39.Qc7+ Ke6 40.Qxe7+) 37.Rc7+ Kb8 38.Bd6! Rxd6 39.Qxe5! fxe5 40.Rf8 leads to mate. 36.Qxe5+! If Black recaptures with $36 .$. . fxe5, then 37.Rf8+ will lead to a back rank checkmate. The other choices don't work either: 36...Ka8 37.Ra1+ or 36... Kc8 37.Qc7 mate.

Alexander Alekhine

As you become more observant of pins to squares and appreciate how important individual squares can be, you move a step closer to becoming a master.

Dueling With A Grandmaster

by Curt Carlson

While going through a bunch of old photos I came across this pic of a simul that GM Viktor Korchnoi held in Denver on September 14, 1977. What follows is my winning game against him during that simul.

When Opening Theory Becomes An Arms Race

by Jeffrey BaffoTed Doykos (1922)Jeffrey Baffo, (1780)Colorado Open, Round 3Greenwood VillageSeptember 4, 2011(Smith-Mora Gambit)

1.e4 c5 2.d4 cxd4 3.c3 The Smith-Mora! Bloodthirsty chess at its finest. In company with openings like the King's and the Blackmar-Diemer the SMG is among the most violent Gambits in all of chess. I shrugged off several OTB ${ }^{1}$ losses early in my career, but when I lost to it in a CC game, I decided that was enough. I subjected it to concentrated study. I eventually settled on the line recommended by Tim Taylor in his (still very useful) 1993 book ${ }^{2}$.

3...dxc3 4.Nxc3 Nc6 5.Nf3 d6 6.Bc4 a6

 Ted and I have a running battle with this position.7.Bg5! The right move, at least circa late 2011. The nature of opening theory is very much that of an "arms race". When the attack is crashes thru too many times, the defense mutates to adjust; vice versa, over and over again. I had expected this text move in our 2010 Colorado Correspondence Chess Championship ${ }^{3}$ game. (Recently finished, 0-1. See supplemental game below.)

7...Nf6 This is pretty much forced as "normal" moves run into one or more of the nasty tactical moves White has available here. For example; 7...h6? 8.Qb3! and Black can think about resigning here... or 7...Na5 8.Bxf7+ Kxf7 9.Ne5+ Ke8 10.Qh5+ and Black is in the middle of nightmarish complications. Is there no alternative for Black other than to submit to the doubled pawns? It certainly looks the way.
8.Bxf6 gxf6 9.0-0 e6 9...Rg8 is a decent move and maintains a slight edge for Black. It even forces White to be careful, for instance if he were to try to continue as in the game with $10 . \mathrm{Nd} 4$ ? Nxd4 11.Qxd4 Bh3 -+
10.Nd4 h5 11.Kh1 Qb6 12.Nxc6 bxc6 OK, the serious stuff starts now. What can we say about this position that will give a clue to what each player needs to do? Well, the 1 st thing that jumps out at you is the radically asymmetrical nature of the position. It's the chess equivalent of Sword & Shield vs. Net & Trident match, ala the Roman Coliseum. White with his beautiful pawn structure and easy development vs. Black's pawn plus and two bishops. The permutations are simply mind boggling. In general White wants to play f4-f5 and lock up Black's central pawn mass, then hammer at any weakness he can find there. Black wants to break out in the center and activate his bishops. Fittingly, the ultimate ends for these diverse means is the same; REGICIDE!

13.f4 Be7 13...h4 is also good. Of course most engines will take the b-pawn, but things just looked too dicey to me after... 13...Qxb2 14.Na4 Qb7 15.Rab1 and White seems to be getting dangerous play. What follows is very complicated play in which both players pursue the plans mentioned above. For two "mere" class players both conduct things amazing well. This game is almost impossible to annotate! To do justice to the myriad complications would require a team of analysts with engines looking over their shoulders the whole way. Almost on every move the reasonable possibilities increase logarithmically and branch out so quickly it overwhelms you. Come to think about it, I love this! This kind of parabolic chaos is exactly why I play chess!
14.f5 A standard procedure vs. the type of pawn structure we see here. However, might be rushing things a bit. Certainly there is no urgent need to clarify the pawn structure this way. Maybe 14.Qe2 would have been better, piling on more pressure.
14...Bd7 Here again Black has the famous "Sleeping in the street" b-pawn snatch available. Still too scary for me.
15.Rc1 Qe3! The punctuation here is given for Black's courage in admitting it's time for desperate measures. In truth, it's not that bad.
16.Rf3 Qg5 17.Qf1 h4 18.Rc2 a5 19.Ne2 e5 20.Rb3 Rd8 21.Rb7 d5 22.exd5
$22 . \operatorname{Rxd} 7$ is a dynamic move that radically changes the game. I find it impossible to analyze it to any definite conclusion!
22...Bxf5 23.Rc3 I'd have to say Black is winning here, if he plays perfectly!
23...h3 23...Be4! is Fritz' move and it's hard to argue with that monster. It continues 24.Ng1 Bb4 25.Nh3 Qf5 26.Qxf5 Bxf5 27.d6 Rxd6 28.Rb8+ Ke7 (28.B:f7+ does not change things, i.e. 28...Kf8 and the urgent task of finding a good way of guarding his back rank (d1) proves impossible, as both 29.Rc1 Rh7! Or 29.Bb3 Bxc3 are still winning for Black.) 29.Rxh8 Rd1+ 30.Ng1 Bc5 31.Bf1 Bf2-+ Clear as a bell, provided you can understand the multi-million move permutations that spring from each of the dozen or so reasonable alternate moves along the way!
24.Rg3 hxg2+? 24...Qh4 seems very strong here.
25.Qxg2 Qh4 26.Rg8+ Rxg8?? I was exhausted at this point and feeling creeping time pressure. Of course it is much better not to be mated! 26...Bf8 is the move and Black still has good winning chances.

27.Qxg8+ Bf8 28.Qxf7# 1-0 Knock out!, but even so I really enjoyed this game!
${ }^{1}$ Over the board, as opposed to CC, Correspondence Chess
${ }^{2}$ How to Defeat the Smith-Morra Gambit: 6...a6 Chess Enterprises, 1993
${ }^{3}$ Especially so since I'd squeaked out a victory in our earlier OTB game featuring the same line. I was very surprised that I saw the older 7.0-0 instead. I had come to think of the younger Doykos as an expert in this line, up-to-date on all the latest wrinkles. Ted himself was at a loss to explain why he played the outmoded 7th move (he had looked up the correct continuation) except that he was hurrying to make his move (Yes, this even happens in CC!) and was kind of on auto-pilot.

Double Trouble

by Paul Anderson

Here is a position from my game with an up and coming young chess player, Jason Loving. It was Black to move here but just imagine that it was White to move and find the best move.

I think tactics have been on my mind so much recently because I have been arguing with Tim Brennan about the definition of a tactic. Tim Brennan and I have been friends long enough now that I can't remember when we met. It had to be before May 2005, as that is the first time he shows up in my database. He always seems to like my statistics, and I definitely like my stats against him ( 7 wins, 0 losses, 1 draw). He started a webpage and newsletter about chess called Tactics Time (www.TacticsTime.com) this year. I figured it was going to be good, as he has written for my webpage and newsletter for 6 years in my Tim Brennan Week (cschess.webs.com/apps/blog/categories/ show/651881-tim-brennan-week) and has always done an excellent job. However, my initial response to him invading my territory was much like the Apostles, "we saw a man driving out demons in your name and we told him to stop, because he was not one of us." I was the guy running a chess webpage and newsletter out of Colorado Springs. That is my thing. There can't be two. Of course, I realized that just because we weren't on the same team didn't mean we weren't working towards the same goal.

> "For he that is not against us is on our part."

Mark 9:40 (KJV)

Regarding tactics, Tim is a bit different in his thinking than myself. He is more liberal. I am more conservative. He believes that all tactics contain double threats, yet includes such ideas as zugzwang and zwischenzug. I am far more orthodox. I like to think of tactics as single moves that attempt to take advantage of material value. Of course, coming up with a definition into which I can cram all the tactical ideas out there is not easy. It is like trying to unify all the laws of physics into one grand equation to describe the universe.
For example, the pin is one of the basic and most fundamental of the chess tactics. However, when does it become a tactic? In my mind, it doesn't have a double threat. You pin pieces all the time, sometimes unintentionally. Then your opponent unpins the piece. Was a tactic played, just unsuccessfully? Or did the tactic never materialize because the double threat didn't occur (like the pawn push to win the pinned piece)? Is the double threat a fundamental part of a tactic? Or is it just the part that makes it successful?

This was on my mind as I played this game. In fact, Jason even used the term "double threat" in the post mortem when he described 14.Qd2. But it bothered me that it didn't work. How can you create a double threat and not win something? Isn't the double threat what makes the tactic work? I had played 14.Qd2 intentionally trying to set up a double threat and get an advantage out of it.

When Jason reached for his rook, I could hardly contain myself. I thought that I really shouldn't be at the table now, as he is going to see my excitement. However, if I leave now, that might tip him off too, as why would I leave the table right when he is making his move? So, I sat there with my hand over my mouth trying to muffle the squeals of delight, as I imagined my brilliant tactic appearing in another issue of Tactics Time. I know the game was only $\mathrm{G} / 90$, but it still felt like Jason hovered over that rook for about 2 hours. His idea was Rhd8. He would allow the fork $(\mathrm{Qg} 5+)$ and move the king out of check to not only protect the pawn but also get his king out of the center and connect his rooks. However, something made him pull that hand back.

It is interesting to note that the fork tactic was the most obvious threat for both Jason and I. I had almost rejected playing Qd2 as the fork tactic wasn't that strong and it would leave my knight pinned to the queen. Only when I realized that the relative pin was actually part of the discovered check tactic did I decide to play it. I figured that I was threatening a fork on one side of the board and a discovery on the other side of the board. I had a double threat; Tim said that was the basis of all tactics. It had to be winning. I was so disappointed when Jason finally played Kd7 and answered both threats with one move. I felt like I was mislead by all of Tim's "double" talk.

Dear Chessplayer PRESIDENTS' LETTER

As you know, the new chess year has begun and the CSCA sponsors three major toumaments. the Al Wallace Memorial, Denver Open and the Colorado Open which are held respectively in late March, early July and the first week of September. Also, the CSCA helped sponsor the Air Force Academy Open last year and contributed partial sponsorship of the Junior Open In the course of the 1974 chess year the CSCA will still continue to direct its' attention to these chess events but would like to become more active in other chess areas in the state.
In regards to the three annual tournaments held every year, the CSCA would like to improve the section organization and prize distribution. At the players meeting in September many voiced objections to the number of sections these tournaments were being divided into, and also expressed dissension os to the equity of prize distribution. In the light of these players complaints, the CSCA will organize these tournaments into fewer sections in an attempt to

In the last couple of months many players have asked me forthrightly what is the CSCA and iust what is its' place in the affairs of chess activity. So I think it is only fair to state some of the objectives that the CSCA has in mind for this year. There are four main points

1. Better distribution of chess information to all of the players in the state. The CSCA, in this respect, will have a more expanded tournament-crosstoble-newsieter mailout. In the past, tournament crosstables have only been mailed to the participants in the toumey. This year the CSCA wofld like to include on those mailouts any chess information whether it be the announcement of small tournaments, chess club news, analysis and publication of games or any kind of information pertinent to chess activity alysis and publication of games or any kind of information pertinent to chess activity and extend that mailout to all members of the CSCA.
2. Co-ordination of chess activities in the state. Although the CSCA directly sponsors three major toumaments, it would be willing to co-sponsor other tournaments. We encouroge this. Presently, this is the arrangement with the Air Academy Open, ond could be worked out with any chess organization which sponsors a toumey and wanted some between two events.
b. Acting as the intermediary between the individual USCF Member and the United 3. Acting as the intermediary be tween the individual USCF Member and the United States Chess Federation. The CSCA Urgos you to join or renew your USCF membership through the state organization for two reasons, first, a regula membership of USCF through the state organization for two reosons; first, a regular membership of USCF costs $$ 10.00$, but if you renew that membership through CSCA, you receive both your USCF, arid CSCA ment is an additional $$ 2.00$ per year; second, renewing your USCF membership through CSCA minimizes the amount of mail that the USCF receives. Presently, the USCF is swamped with business and urges each player to act through his representative state orgonization so that they, the USCF, can respond quickly and efficiently to individual requests. so that they, the USCF, can respond quickly and efficiently to individual requests.
3. Promotion of the education and art of chess. Most importantly, this is the fundamental 4. Promotion of the education and art of chess. Most importantly, this is the fundamental Open Championship every year in order to enhance chess activity among the youth.
I hope that 1 have clearly stated the purposes of the CSCA. If there are questions then 1 encourage you to contact the board members, or me personally with ony complaints or suggestions that you might have. If you have any "Chess News" you would Iike disseminated to the players in Colorado, send that information to our secretary, Royal Franklin, 3072 E. Peakview Cir. Littleton, Colorado 80121, telephone 795-6767. Particularly, I ask every chess club president to send any chess news about that club (when it meets, where it meets, etc) to Mr. Franklin. Also, any news from chess leagues (Denver Chess League, Northern Chess League, etc) would be highly oppreciated.

Colorado Chess has flourished immensly in the last few years as evidenced by the high furnou at tournoments, and the high caltbre of play. The trend is upward for chess, and the CSCA will respond to the challenge

"The Cask Of The Amontillado"

by Jeffrey Baffo
milefromkg (1882) baffoj (1967)
www.chesscube.com October 9, 2011

Two Knights Defense

1.e4 Nf6 2.Nc3 e5 3.Nf3 Nc6 4.Bc4 Nxe4 5.Bxf7+ Kxf7 6.Nxe4 d5 7.Nc3? Short list here has Ng 3 and (either) Knight to g5+. It's easy to see why this didn't make the cut; it simply begs to be flattened by the pawn roller.
7...Bb4?! Which I, like the goofy guy I am, avoid. Why the mixed punctuation? Even though Black is still better here, this throws away so much advantage that it really deserves the former only.
8.O-O?! 8.d3 was better.
8...h6? Consistent. Stupid, but consistent. 7...e4! Would have been simply deadly.
9.Qe1?? Boy is this a blitz game or what? Loses a piece!
9...Re8?? Refuses a piece ( $9 \ldots$..e4! is still correct.) At least this keeps a moderate edge.
10.h3 Bf5 11.Qd1 Kg8 12.Ne2 d4 13.c3 Bc5 14.b4 Bb6 15.a4 a6 16.Ng3 Qf6 17.Bb2 Rad8 18.Nxf5 Qxf5 19.b5 axb5 20.axb5 Ne7 21.Qb3+ White has devoted major portions of "blood and treasure" to the queenside, all for naught. In the end all he succeeds in doing is creating a barren wasteland there, while trouble is brewing closer to his Royal Highness' home.
21...Kh8 22.c4 e4 23.Nh2 Ng6 24.d3?? I see this type of reaction even in postal play. The united center pawns exert such a menace, are so dreaded (for what they MIGHT do...) that people will sometimes do insane things to break them up. Total blunder or desperate plan, White never recovers. He has given me what every attacker yearns for, a clear target.

24...exd3 25.Rad1 Nf4 26.Bc1 Ne2+

$26 \ldots \mathrm{Nc} 3$ is probably stronger but I had a simple plan; eliminate the last effective minor piece for White, secure my beachhead pawns on the d-file, use those pawns to cut off support to his Majesty and then start dropping bombs.
27.Kh1 Nxc1 28.Rxc1 d2 29.Rcd1 Perhaps White anticipated rounding up the little mustang on d2, but overlooked my humble little cleric on b6 there. Now, with more support coming, the Siamese d-pawns are a deadly blockade, making rescue of White's King impossible.
29...Ba5! 30.Nf3 Re2! 31.g4 Qe4 32.Kg2 Rf8 33.Qa3 I almost fell off my chair here, cursing myself for (again) having blown a winning position. How could I have overlooked this simple fork?? Was my beautiful position being blown apart by an ugly tactic?

33...Bb4! NO! Because of my meticulous planning, keen command of tactics and just plain clean living (when we feed the proceeding sentence thru our IBM Bull* translator, it comes back DUMB LUCK). I have a brilliant counterblow.
34.Qb3 White cannot abandon her protection of the Knight.
34...d3 Refer to the climactic scene in Edgar Alan Poe's "The Cask of the Amontillado" for literary example of what is happening to White.
35.Kg3 Qxf3+ 36.Kh2 Bd6+ 0-1

How appropriate that the unassuming priest strikes the final blow.

Tactics Time answers:

Tactics Time is now ONLINE! www.tacticstime.com - Sign up for my FREE e-mail newsletter, where I send out a new, original tactics problem every other day, with many games taken from Colorado players. I also have podcasts, blog posts, and tons of tactics for you to solve! Tim@TacticsTime.com

1. Fritz 13 describes 1.h6! as "an unpleasant surprise". If 1...Bxh6 2.Bxh6 gxh6 $3 . g 7$ will queen the pawn. If 1...gxh6 $2 . g 7$ promotes a pawn. If 1...Kxg6 2.hxg7 Kxg7 3.Bxg5 wins a piece, as the Black king gets overloaded trying to protect the bishop and stop the passed pawn.
2. Rhett took advantage of Dan's weak back rank, grabbing a pawn with 1.Qxd5! Joel Johnson, author of "Formation Attacks" would refer to the e6 pawn as being "threat pinned", since it is the only thing preventing a back rank mate threat of Re8#. Although he lost this game, Dan went on to win the chess club championship for 2011. Congrats Dan!
3. Fritz 13 gave the clearance sacrifice $\mathbf{1} . . . \mathrm{Nc} 3$ !! a double exclam. Black is threatening $\mathbf{Q g} 2 \#$. The only way to slow down this mate is 2.f3, but after 2...Qxf3 (still threatening Qf2\#) 3.Rc2 Qd1+ 4.Kf2 Qxc2+ White is up a rook. In the game my opponent played 2.Kf1?? And I checkmated him with 2...Qh1\# to tie for first in the Under 1800 section with 5 out of 6 points.
4. White is down a bishop and a pawn, but missed an amazing drawing resource with 1.Rxh6+! After 1...Kxh6 White has endless checks with Rh1+ and Rg1+. The wall of doubled isolated pawns on the f file prevent the Black king from ever moving forward, and nothing can block the checks.
5. Black got a "buy one, get one free" with 1...Rxc2 2.Qxc2 Qxf4 picking up a knight and bishop for a rook, overloading the White queen.
6. Mark grabs a pawn with $\mathbf{1}$...Nxe4! removing the defender of the White knight on f5. If 2.Rxe4 Qxf5.
7. 1.Bxf5! wins a pawn. If 1...exf5 2.Qxe7 wins back the bishop, using the queen and rook battery on the e file.
8. Robert found a very nice combination to win a pawn with $\mathbf{1}$...Nxc4! For example, after 2.Qxd8 Rfxd8 3.Rxc4 d5 is a nice pawn fork that gets back the knight.
9. White gets a fork stuck in him, because he's done after 1...Nxe2 2.Qxe2 d4.

Winter Springs Open

by Richard Buchanan, Tournament Director

Forty-Four chess players braved the wintry weather to play, appropriately, in the Winter Springs Open on December 3rd & 4th in Manitou Springs. The three sections had a good mix of players. The June section attracted more than the usual number rated above 2000. There were lots of good fights and upsets, as well as draws between players many points apart. In the end, Kevin Seidler was the most consistent point-scorer, and his 3.5 took first place, followed by State Champion Eric Montany and Josh Jex at 3. Ron Rossi's 2.5 won him the U1900 prize. All Ron's opponents were rated well above him.
Both the July and August sections were won by a player at almost the very bottom of the wall chart. Kevin McKenzie, rated 1244, took first in the U1800 July section. His lowest-rated opponent was more than 200 points above him. Similarly, Sam Honeycutt, rated 854, won the U1200 August section with a clean 4-0. I trust these guys will be getting the ratings they deserve soon. Other prize winners were James McKenna, Anthea Carson, Barry Hepsley, Greg McCarty, and Gunnar Andersen in the July section; and Victor Creazzi, Sam Dorchuck, Daniel Herman, and Ken Hollister in the August. A games selection will appear in the next issue.
